Isn't it fun at the circus? The show will start any minute, but while you're waiting, here are some games for you to play.

Connect the dots from one to one hundred and three. Someone familiar you will see. He's the one who says "Let the show begin!" When you get home, you can color him in.

Following the paths around the circus lot, walk your penny from the performance ring to the prop tent. On your way, why not stop at the concession stand for a chocolate-covered banana? They really are yummy, and they cost only $2.25. I bet Mom and Dad would like one too.

Now go to Clown Alley. This is where you would live if you were a clown. Maybe someday you'll grow up to be a clown, but for now it's easy to pretend with the Happy Face Clown Makeup Kit, ten fantastic makeup items at one low price. It's yours for $4.50 at any one of the many Toy 'n' Treat stands around the lot.

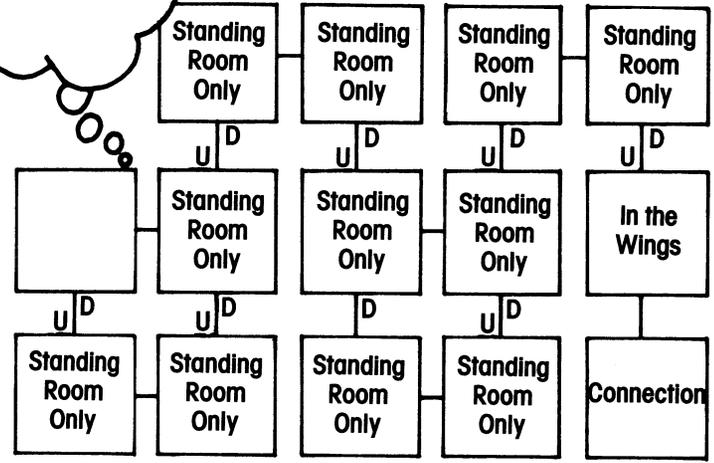

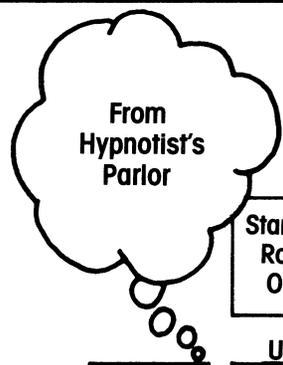

The Toy 'n' Treat stands also have a cute little monkey-on-a-stick who looks just like our gorilla, Mahler. A real gorilla costs thousands of dollars, but you can have a monkey-on-a-stick for just $3.75. Can you and your new toy monkey find Mahler's cage?

While you're at the menagerie, don't forget to buy some peanuts for old Hannibal. Since you're not allowed to feed the animals, you'll have to eat them yourself! You'll find them a delicious treat, and at 90¢, they're a real bargain. Why not get two bags?

Now walk your penny back to the performance ring. The show is about to begin!
